Fixing institutions, not women and girls

Join our summer school on gender equality in the domain of education, employment, media, politics, law, and crisis contexts. The course aims to address the root causes of persisting gender inequalities by using its unique transformative equality approach for fixing institutions, not women.

True global and interdisciplinary perspective

The course is taught by lecturers from a diverse range of Universities from Europe and South Africa, with a background from various disciplines including law, psychology, sociology, economics, and gender studies.
